To enhance security and reduce disruptions, the Attorney General has determined that it is acceptable for public bodies to specify on their meeting notices the platform that will be used to provide remote access and clear contact information for members of the public to call or email to obtain meeting access information, such as a code or password. The public meeting notice itself need not include the meeting access code or password. However, to comply with the Open Meeting Law, the contact information that is listed on the meeting notice must be closely monitored and responded to so that a member of the public can obtain the meeting access information immediately before the meeting and throughout the meeting. Just like an in-person meeting, a member of the public cannot be required to RSVP in advance to a meeting and must be able to join the virtual meeting even after it has begun.
