Chapter Five

Islamic State (IS) page 71

In June 2014, an event occurred in the Middle East which surprised many people unfamiliar with Islam and the Middle East: the birth of Islamic State of Iraq & Syria (ISIS). A month later, they changed their name to Islamic State (IS). They claim to want to kill all Shia, rape their women and have a pure Islamic race in the future.

The phenomenon of ISIS may have shocked many but its existence is neither new nor surprising. It's a story that goes back fourteen centuries and has been duplicated many times throughout history. The first time it happened and succeeded was in Medinah in the seventh century.

The wind of history disperses the seeds of this rotten tree all over the globe, whenever the environment is right. Then, special interests nourish and support them and, in no time, a new plant, very similar to the one that arose in the seventh century, grows with the same DNA and appearance.

To understand the events of June 2014, one should look at events in the Islamic calendar's first year, which marks the migration (Hejira) of the Prophet Mohammed in 623 AD.

Ten years before the death of Mohammed at 632 AD, he was engaged in 27 wars (Jihads), in which the entire Arabian Peninsula became Moslem.

If the Quran is read chronologically, the second half of the Quran, which are the Verses (written during his ten years in Medinah (Madani Verses) refers to these 27 wars and how Islam was established in the present territory of Saudi Arabia.

Immediately, after the Prophet's death, practically more than half of the Arabia returned to their old beliefs and abandoned Islam.

Throughout all four years rule of the first Islam Caliph, Abu-Backer, he was spent in wars to unify Arabia under the flag of Islam.

The Second Caliph, Omar, after unifying Arabia in 636 AD, attacks the Persian Empire, which was weak and tired after a 14-year battle with the Roman Empire. In the face of a major assault, the fall of Mosul, the western Kurdish province of the Persian Empire, was the Moslems' first victory.

The Battle of Iran took almost 50 years until all the Persian Empire was completely conquered by the Arabian Moslems. Iranians were forced to convert to Islam, read the Arabic Quran and also forced not to speak Persian.

What we see today being played out by ISIS is a repeat of events from 1400 years ago!

The capital of the Persian Empire was the city of Tisfun, 20 km south of Baghdad. Baghdad was a suburb of Tisfun by the river. Since rivers and water were new for Arabs, they decided to make that village their capital and used Iranian laborers to build a new city there.

The word "Baghdad" means God-given in Old Persian. It was chosen as the capital of the new Islamic State.

Mesopotamia (land between two rivers), part of the Fertile Crescent, has a ten-thousand-year history, from biblical history to the Babylonians, then to the Persian and the Islamic Era, there is no mention of the word Iraq. It is all Baghdad after the Arab conquest.

Iraq, known as Irank, until a few hundred years ago (K after a word in Persian meaning little). Iraq and Iran are historically the same people. The only difference is that Iraqis speak Arabic and Iranians speak Persian.

For six hundred years, from the seventh until the thirteenth century, Baghdad was the ruling capital for the Caliphs of Islam.

At the thirteenth century, the Mongols overran the Moslem Arab Empire and ruled the Arab world until the sixteenth century when the Central Asian Turks in Anatolia built the Ottoman Empire and colonized all the Arabs.

At the sixteenth century, Iranian Shia was reborn to counter the Sunni-led Turkic Ottoman Empire. This was a nightmare century for Europe as Turks were closing in on Europe's major cities.

European historians agree that, if not for the Iranian Shia, Turks could have advanced all the way to Paris.

The decline of Iran started at the 18th Century and, by the 19th Century, the Shia Ayatollahs were so powerful in Iran that they practically were running the country. These developments coincide with discovery of oil in Iran.

At this time, the British devised a method to not only counter the Ottoman Empire but to protect India as well. Around 1860, a young British spy went to Arabia and after twenty years of effort, he united a Moslem clergyman, named Abdul Wahab, with a fighting tribe called Saudi and united them to rule the entire Arabian Peninsula.

The rulers of Arabia, the Hashemi Family (descendants of the Hashemi Tribe of Prophet Mohammad) were sent to Jordan and that country was given to them.

Saudi tribe was given the country, which is known as Saudi Arabia today. This is the time when the Wahabi sect was created as the official religion of Saudi Arabia.

In 1881, as the first exercise of Saudi power and their Wahabi belief, they traveled to Karbala, Iraq, then under Ottoman rule, where they beheaded 18,000 Shia.

The Sunni Ottoman forces just watched this massacre. Iran's weak Shia government sent some forces to help. By the time they reached Karbala, the Saudis had fled!

Doesn't this episode remind you of the emergence and advancement of ISIS in June, 2014?

At the beginning of the 20th Century, there was another mission in Saudi Arabia by Colonel T.E. Lawrence, better known as Lawrence of Arabia, to kick out the Turks.

Soon after, the First World War started which resulted in the end of the Ottoman Empire and the creation of Turkey.

Describing the centuries-old conflicts of the Middle East as stemming from the animosity between Shia and Sunni is wrong!

Even more misleading is when there is no mention of Saudi Arabia's Wahabism!

Let us consider the three major sects or branches of Islam:

1-Wahabi, 2- Sunni and 3- Shia      page 74

1- The original Islam, Wahabi, is also called Salafi. That means predecessor or proceeding in Arabic. They practice Islam according to the Sharia Laws set forth in the Madani verses of the Quran with zero tolerance for variation. The actions of the Taliban, Al-Qaeda, ISIS, IS, Boku-Haram are exact manifestations of Salafi belief.

2- Sunni, meaning the traditional Islam, is a modified version of original Islam, practiced by ninety percent of the Moslems all over the world. Sharia Law, in Sunni belief, not only uses Quran but also stories (Hadis) from the four Caliphs and also behavior of the Prophet Mohammad. There are some tolerances in the Sunni Sharia Laws.

3- Shia, meaning follower, is a highly modified Islam (so modified that majority of Moslems believe it is not Islam at all) within an Iranian tradition of monarchy and Holy Sperm!

The first belief of Shia, as the followers of Ali, is that Ali was the first Caliph after Mohammad.

Shia rejects Sunni belief that the sequence of four Caliphs after Mohammad was: 1-Abu-Backer, 2- Omar, 3- Osman, 4- Ali.

Furthermore, Shia believe after Ali, the Caliphate (Imam) was inherited by Ali's children until the 12th son, who disappeared 1,000 years ago, and will appear again, together with Jesus Christ, to save the world and bring Justice on earth by killing all the non-believers.

During this thousand-year reign, until the coming of the 12th Imam, the Ayatollahs will act as the 12th Imam's deputies or lieutenants Sharia Law in Shia is the interpretations of the Ayatollahs! The Shia have changed the laws so much that the Wahabi believe Shia have converted Islam into idol-worship and an insult to Islam.

From Wahabi perspective, Shia are worse than Jews and infidels and killing 5 Shia guarantees Heaven and all benefits for them!

Understanding these facts, explains the behaviors of IS and ISIS. The conflict in the Middle East is a proxy war between Iranian Shia and Saudi Wahabi.

The conflict also has its advantages as it may be good for business. Therefore, looking into this conflict from a business perspective, it is good to keep the balance.

The Saudi family, a modern and educated people, friend of the West, actually cannot have any control over the ideology and behavior of the clergy in Saudi Arabia. Even if they have issued a decree, that any Saudi Arabian citizen engaging in a Jihadist campaign would be prosecuted. Some observers fear the next battleground for IS might be Saudi Arabia, although they are in harmony ideologically.

However, it is not wrong to say the events of 1979 in Iran and the release of "the Devil" from the bottle gave birth to many other devils who spent their infant years in the attack of September 11, 2001 and matured in 2014.

Again, it is not wrong to say: every event in the Middle East is related to Iran directly or indirectly.

Tony Blair, after retiring from his post as Prime Minister of Great Britain in 2007, represents the “quartet” of Middle East negotiators made up of the United States, the European Union, the United Nations and Russia.

Tony Blair, as the Quartet representative, intensified his partnership with Senator George Mitchell in support of political negotiations. In December 2012, Palestinian officials declared Tony Blair’s efforts, and the Quartet he represented, to be “useless, useless, useless”.

Since 2001, it was everybody’s guess that Iran would be next in line for a U.S. invasion after the defeat of the Taliban in Afghanistan.
Well, an Iraq invasion came and went and nothing happened, except President Bush calling Iran one of the “Axis of Evil” and threatening that all options, including military strikes were on the table.

Among many warmongering remarks, finally a frustrated Tony Blair made a sensible comment about Iran, wherein he saw no end in the conflicts of Iraq and Afghanistan and the war against terrorism, while the present regime in Iran is in power.

President Obama’s carrot diplomacy of tough sanctions worked much better than the stick diplomacy of President Bush. Finally, the Islamic regime realized, in 2014, they would have to give up their nuclear ambitions of making a bomb and put their hundred-billion Dollar investment down the drain if they wanted to survive.

The silly rhetoric of AhmadiNejad might sell internally and satisfy the hardcore fanatics of the regime in Iran, including the Supreme Leader, but it brought the whole country to the verge of collapse at the beginning of 2014.

Therefore, the leader, for the survival of the regime, gave the mission to a career security person of the regime to resolve the nuclear issue under his close supervision. The 180-degree change of direction was called “Heroic Softening” (Narmesh e Ghahramananeh) by the Leader.

Although it was agreed that negotiations cannot go on forever and needed to be resolved in six months, in June 2014, it was extended for another six months.

Vice-President Joe Biden, whose prediction at 2010 about Iraq becoming three Federal countries with Kurdistan in the North, Shia in the South and Sunni in the West was ridiculed, now appears to be what was happening in 2014.

As Kurds start selling oil independent from the Iraqi government and Sunni-Al Queda takes over in Faluja with only a show of some government forces outside the City but no intervention.

Finally, at June 2014, the Islamic State of Iraq and Syria (ISIS) comes out of nowhere and, faster than a superpower, extends its territory from North at Mosul to the outskirts of Baghdad in a few weeks (A reminder of the fall of the Persian Empire by the army of Omar, the second Caliph of Islam).

After this victory, Omar Al-Baghadadi, the Leader of ISIS, calls himself Abu-Backer (the first Caliph of Islam) Al-Baghdadi and also calls his government Islamic State (IS) rather than ISIS.

Time Travel into the Future    page 76

The late great science fiction author, Sir Arthur C. Clarke, inventor and futurist, seems to have been speaking the following words for a clip produced for the purpose of being played much later, like a video time capsule:

“If what I say now seems to be very reasonable, then I will have failed completely. Only if what I tell appears absolutely unreasonable have we any chance of visualizing the future as it really will happen.”

It is not prudent to say; what will happen next month, let alone next year and five years hence.

But, by reviewing history and learning from it while considering the present situation, one can engage in some wishful thinking and say this is what we wish to happen.

No matter how many troops the United States has in Afghanistan, it makes no difference, as the Taliban can and will generate a proportional amount of suicide bombers and fighters to make the people’s life miserable.

We defeated the Taliban at 2001 yet, after 14 years of trying everything, they have emerged stronger.

The only solution is education, education and more education.

This is a long-term plan and will not happen in few years or even one or two presidential terms. It is also a costly task, requiring billions of dollars in non-military investments.

The oil rich Arab States should pay for this program and the program must be bipartisan. Something like a new Peace Corp-like group must be formed, which we could call it the Teaching Corp (TC).

A Republican businessman should be appointed by the President to start and run TC. Phase One of a TC plan should be to build and operate two thousand schools in Afghanistan.

The United States should not pay for this except to provide supervision and protection.

The Taliban we are fighting today are the graduates of Madrasa's (religious schools), built in Pakistan and Afghanistan more than thirty years ago, with Saudi Arabia and UAE investments. They educated and trained children from age of five how to hate America and our values.

A U.S. President who initiates this task may not be alive to see and enjoy the fruits of his accomplishment.

Presidential elections come and go in Afghanistan and the new President might want to make a deal with Taliban. Why shouldn't we?

We need a long-term plan, not a short one.

It is best to release some Taliban prisoners from Guantanamo in exchange for even one soldier they have in their prison.

After the exchange of June, 2014, for the next two-and-a-half years, American soldiers will not be sent anywhere to change any regime or make peace. Afghans and Iraqis are free to choose their destiny. No American soldier will be sacrificed for their freedom.

This policy was tested in Iraq and it worked as oil production is at its peak in 2014 but there is no single week without a suicide bomber killing innocent people. This sectarian war is something that U.S. cannot resolve or do anything about. It comes with education of the people and takes time to be resolved.

In Nigeria, the Nigerian Taliban or Buko Haram, and their abduction of two hundred girls, is another example that these internal issues cannot be resolved by American intervention.

Another mega-scale injustice is something which was going on for many years in Syria.

A simple protest for freedom by the people of Syria against a secular dictator, Bashar Al-Assad, turned into one of the ugliest sectarian wars in Middle East history, with more than one hundred thousand innocent Syrians killed and more than two million people abandoning their homes to live in shelters in neighboring countries.

If it were a fight between the government and some freedom fighters, it would make sense to intervene, even deploying American forces. But, all of sudden, the jihadis or ones who may call themselves Salafists or Taliban, from all over the world, find their way to Syria, not seeking freedom for the Syrian people but to kill and behead the Syrian Alavi Shia people. According to their strong belief, killing five Shia guarantees their entrance to Heaven.

Involvement by this group of Jihadis made even Israel believe that living next to a dictator, such as Bashar Al-Assad, is far safer than the Jihadists in Syria.

What a mess the world should live with for many years.

What if Iran was not involved in Syria? Bashar Al-Assad could not survive for one month after the uprising. Next would have been a massacre of Alavi Shia's by the Salafist Jihadists and a takeover of Syria by Salafists. This would have been a nightmare for Israel. For Israel, Salafists would make Palestinians, Hamas or Hezbollah look like child's play.

The Devil gets out of bottle      page 78

After the Second World War until 1979, news about terrorism was limited to a few individuals, such as Carlos, who hijacked the plane of OPEC Ministers in 1974 or the shooting of the Israeli Olympic delegation in Munich in 1972.

Religious terrorism was limited to burning some libraries of Shia bookstores in Pakistan by the Wahabis in the 1960s and 1970s which, after such incidents, the leaders of Pakistan, Saudi Arabia and Iran called each other, expressing their sorrow at these idiotic acts.

However, after the 1979 revolution in Iran, it is worth repeating, “the Devil came out of the bottle” and the list of terrorists’ acts became countless.

These acts were of Islamic Fundamentalism.

Islam after Christianity, is the third generation of Judaism and all three are brunches of Ibrahimic Religions.

Islam being six hundred years younger religion than Christianity, one might argue the period of 1000 years darkness at Europe caused by Christianity and enlightenments after Luther Revolution might happen in the Islamic world with the same time laps.

But we are living in the Information Ager and hopefully Internet helps the process from darkness to enlightenment become shorter than what world experience during the history of Christianity.

In Islam, killing others for not believing in Allah, what is historically quoted by Moslems in the Quran as proudly as Christians tell the stories of the Crusades or Jews quote the Torah on how the Palestinians were killed by Jewish kings three thousand years ago, was allowed.

But, after the Second World War, many countries became members of the United Nations and some laws and new regulations governing the relation between countries were passed by the U.N..

The illegal hostage-taking by a sovereign nation was perhaps the first law broken internationally. But, internally, a far worse thing was happening in Iran which the world was unaware or did not want to know.

This Pulitzer Prize-winning photo was taken in 1979, when Shia Ayatollah Khomeini, rounded up and punished many hundreds of Kurdish protestors to the Islamic Constitution.

The Kurds were Sunni, not Shia followers of Ayatollah Khomeini.

And this is one of thousands of photos taken in June 2014 when Salafi (Wahabi) Caliph Abu-Backer Al-Baghdadi rounded up and punished or beheaded many hundreds Shia who had not even protested the invasion and occupation of Northern Iraq by ISIS.

The laws about killing others who do not believe in my beliefs have been in place and practiced for centuries but two kingdoms, the Saudi and Iran, would never allow such atrocities before 1979. These two kingdoms stopped the clerics from practicing their Shari'a laws.

But the clerics took over Iran in 1979 and wrote a constitution according to their Shia Shari'a laws and implemented their practice in Iran and abroad.

This is how, the devil is out of the bottle!

The clergy of different Islamic sects, especially Wahabis started asking: "Who is this Devil Infidel Ayatollah who wants to practice Islam Shari'a Laws better than us? We are the cradle of Islam to begin with!".

With the big Devil, little devils all came out and gathered in that theater when the Soviet Union invaded Afghanistan in 1980.

After Russian retreating from Afghanistan, the little devils spread all over the world.

Consequently, all the conflicts in the Middle East became proxy wars between the clerics who rule Iran and Wahabi clerics whom the Saudi royal family cannot stop.

This brings us back to British Prime Minister, Tony Blair, who said, “there is no end to the Iraq, Afghanistan and Palestinian conflict and terrorism while the regime in Iran is in power”.

It does not make any difference if the nuclear issues are resolved or the Iranian regime modifies its behavior internationally and gives relative freedom to its people, especially women and minorities of other religions and belief's. The existence of the Constitutional Sharia laws in Iran is a catalyst for creating terrorism elsewhere. Before the Arab Spring of 2010, Iran again staged another revolution in protest against the reelection of a President AhmadiNejad, who was supported by the Supreme Leader. This protest could have been a sign of encouragement for young Egyptians to start the Arab Spring.

The young who were not born when Mosavi was Prime Minister at 80ies and did not remember him, voted, by a decisive majority, to throw AhmadiNejad, the candidate of the Leader, out of office. But a day after election, the Leader, Ayatollah Khamenei, in an unprecedented speech, declared AhmadiNejad the winner, without the votes having been counted.

According to the Islamic Constitution of Iran the Supreme Leader has the authority to over-ride the election results.

The protests, which later became known as the Green Movement, went on for a month and the two candidates, former speaker of the Islamic Parliament and the former Prime Minister of the Islamic Regime who was ahead of Mahmood AhmadiNejad, both were charged as anti-revolutionaries and kept under house arrest.

The policy of zero tolerance has been applied from the beginning to suppress any protest.

Killing in the name of Allah is a normal practice in Islam but, it is the most ridiculous way to indict those who disagree with the regime as “Enemies of God”, with a punishment of death.

It looks more ridiculous to indict an Ayatollah or the former confidant of Khomeini as an “Enemy of God”. Therefore, they kept them either in prison or under house arrest.

A newly evolved phenomenon, ISIS (Islamic State of Iraq & Syria) and comparing that with the Islamic Regime in Iran (better to say ISI, Islamic State of Iran) has removed any doubt that they are the same and no different from the first Arab Moslem invaders of the Persian Empire and Roman Empires fourteen centuries ago.

How they act is the same and anybody who says Taliban, al-Quaideh, ISIS, IS or ISI are not Moslem, their head should be re-examined.

Over forty-three years, Islamic State in Iran has opened everybody’s eyes and every ordinary Iranian has realized that Iran has been enslaved in a triangle chain of misery for more than one thousand years!

The book cover of “Iran in the Triangle Chain of Misery”, written in Persian, highlights the country’s recent hundred twenty years history and struggle of the people for freedom and the rule of law. The Iranian flag’s colors, green, white and red, are here shown inside the boundaries of Iran. In the green part, peaceful demonstrations by masses of people for the last hundred years, chanting over and over again their peaceful slogan and demanding, in the white part, “Where is my vote?”. That question has always have been answered in the red part with bloodshed by the government through the history of assassination, murder, imprisonment or closure of the Constitution and Parliament (Majles) in Iran.

Those representing the “Triangle Chain of Misery” around Iran are the Clerics with Turban, Clerics without Turban and crowned kings supported by clerics.

Only once in one thousand years of Iran’s recent history did the people succeed in breaking this chain. That moment, in 1906, is known as the “Constitution Revolution” and it established a parliamentary regime in Iran. That year, the Holiest Shia cleric, Ayatollah Sheikh Fazlollah Noori, who was against the Constitution and Parliament, was tried and hanged.

This was the first and last time a Clergy or Ayatollah was tried and executed.

According to Shia Doctrine executing an Ayatollah is against Islam Sharia.

However, later, the Pahlavi Dynasty illegally amended the constitution and gave dictatorship power to the Shah. Shah was a modern man and friend of the West but he had a superstitious and religious mind. He supported the clerics, with and without turban, to safeguard his crown against communists and the National Front. Twenty-five years rule of the Late Shah with this policy, many believe, gave rise to 1979 Revolution and letting the devil coming out of the bottle.

Therefore, the broken chain and path to freedom was closed again.

The key to opening this chain again is in the hands of the people inside Iran, not opposition figures outside the country.

Few faces of the Iranian regime's cronies are very familiar but this time a cleric with turban has crowned himself by amending the illegal and unpopular Shari'a Law and appointing himself as the representative of Allah.

When Ayatollah becomes a Dictator, it is called "Velayat Motlagheh Faghih", meaning Absolute Governance of the Ayatollah, who receives guidance from Allah! The title given to Ayatollah Khamenei.

In a so-called election, almost like those of the Communist Party in the old Soviet Union, another leadership selection occurred every four years.

The Iranian regime introduced eight of their loyal supporters to stage Western-style presidential debates so that the people might choose one to become President.

We know, in an Absolute Governance of the Ayatollah, the President is nothing but a purchase-agent or spokesperson. But changing the face of an Mahmood AhmadiNejad look-alike was in everybody's favor.

Hassan Rouhani, a career security figure and anchor of the regime, but unknown to the public, was selected to become president with a lot of talks and promises for improving the economy. He enjoyed public support.

For the last three decades, the clerical leaders have destroyed the agriculture, rivers, lakes, forests, abandoned industrial production and turned the country into almost ninety million consumers who are fed from a single revenue source: the sale of oil and gas.

In 2021 an unknown young clergy, Ebrahim Raisi, became president instead of Ghasem Soleimani who was assassinated one year earlier by American forces in Iraq.

The oil revenues in the corrupt regime makes no difference in the life of ordinary citizens, whether it is 200 Billion Dollars a year or 20 Billion, as eighty percent of the revenue is drained towards useless programs such as nuclear development, support for international terrorism, deposit in the foreign accounts of the regime's cronies (Oligarchy) and Ayatollahs, construction projects primarily to benefit the Revolutionary Guard (Sepah) and security forces with no benefits to the public and, finally, building shrines for newly-discovered Shia Saints, spreading more and more superstitions to worm up the clergy's business. The remaining twenty percent is converted to "Toman", country currency to pay salaries and spend on services of little productive value.

Internationally, the rhetoric and big mouth of all Ayatollahs from the beginning and until the Dean of Columbia University called AhmadiNejad "a petty dictator", followed a news that more than eight hundred Billion Dollars in missing funds claimed by Iran's Central Bank.

Among the even greater non-monetary losses suffered by the regime were: A devastating eight-year war; not a war between two brother nations but a fight between two persons (remember the fight of two donkeys and the fall of the kid) and the loss of more than one million lives;

A severe brain drains and the loss of the country's national wealth;
The loss of the oil and gas transit revenue; Loss of all valuable friends internationally except Bashar Assad of Syria, Vladimir Putin of Russia, Hezbollah of Lebanon, Oscar Chavez of Venezuela and deed Fidel Castro of Cuba; Countries who were a part of Iran some decades ago, have now ridiculously claim some Iranian territories as part of their new independent country.

Every ordinary person on the streets of Iran is well aware of the politics and nature of the regime. But, empty-handed and with a well-equipped enemy who is ruling them with no mercy, killing ISIS style, the people are devising a different way to combat the regime.
It is primarily the young and women who will change this regime.
It is primarily the young and women who will change this regime.

They have realized the change will not come with militarily invasion or by some leaders created outside Iran with Western support, but will come internally by masses of people who want changing the Regime's Constitution.

For the last decades, young people chose higher education and girls superseded boys as university graduates.

On the Art front, with all limitations in an Islamic environment imposed by the regime, there is total opposition against any form of Art, except for writing and reciting Quran and mourning singing for the Imam's death. However, Iran's underground music has become internationally famous, and Iranian movies are candidates for Oscar consideration and have won international prizes.

People read Persian poetry which the Islamist clergy hate most, like Shahnameh, written by Ferdowsi one thousand years ago, which praises Iranian glories before the Islamic era, Omar Khayam and Hafez with their anti-Islam interpretations.

People have realized all the players of this regime are in a constant war among themselves to benefit financially from the sale of oil and endless left-clergy/ right-clergy, moderate/ hardline clergy struggles.

The changing of the guard among themselves at every election has nothing to do with the welfare of the people, but for who can steal more from assets of the nation.

Russia and Great Britain, the major supporters of the regime, where many Ayatollah families live and where their bank accounts are kept, will never let Iran's "milky cow" ever get weak.

Also, the oil companies and The Military Industries of the West and East, who have benefitted from this unpopular regime, are certainly behind the regime.

That is why people are indifferent to outside political activities.

They know that help will never come from outside Iran's borders, but whatever should happen will come from inside.

Every now and then, the regime hangs a few people for their connections to some Iranian foreign opposition to give some popularity to the outside oppositions and also to show their authority to the internal opposition. Nevertheless, internal opposition is growing more and more.

At 2014, when all the attention and news was about nuclear issues with Iran, increasing and breaking the records for public hangings and appointing Mostafa Pour Mohammadi as Justice Minister, a major figure in the killing of more than five thousand young prisoners after the eight-year war, says everything about the cabinet of Hassan Rouhani and his pledge to improve human rights in Iran.

But selection of Raisi a member of the same Death Committee of 1989 makes people more num!

Raisi was selected by Ayatollah Khamenei, the Supreme Leader

How 1906 Constitution Revolution faded away      page 88

In 1979 the first slogan of the Revolution was Independence – Freedom - Constitution. But in the heat of revolution and the vacuum the Shah created during his monarchy by suppressing any political activists, dissolving all parties except his own Rastakhiz and letting only religious organizations and mosques be active, the well-organized clergies substituted “Islamic Republic” for Constitution in the early slogan.

In a situation where no non-religious politician existed in the political theater of Iran, the Shah, out of desperation first turned to Dr. Gholam Hossain Sedeghi from National Front of Mosaddegh and later to Shapoor Bakhtyar, a longtime political prisoner and unknown to many Iranians, appointed him as Prime Minister, hoping to calm the situation.

The Shah, as it was too late, gave instructions to the Army, not to support Bakhtyar and get orders from his confidant and security advisor, four-star General Fraydoon Fardoot and left the country.

The Shah was thinking that General Fardoot will act like General Fazlullah Zahedi and will stage a Coup d'état like 1953 and he will return. But well-organized clerics prepared everything for the coming of Ayatollah Khomeini.

The West, at the peak of the Cold War, under President Jimmy Carter and G6 welcomed such a change. An Islamic State was thus established in Iran.

Well-connected Soviet Union to major Allies of Khomeini, the Tudeh Party and Mujaheddin (MKO), also welcome the departure of Shah

But the National Front (Jebheh Melie) split in three ways, one group left Iran, one group cooperated with Prime Minister Shapour Bakhtyar who Shah appointed Prime Minister and one group cooperated with Khomeini.

Bakhtyar was in power for 37 days before General Hassan Fardoot gave up the Army to Khomeini.

What happened to Tudeh Party (Iranian Communists) and National Front of Dr. Mosaddegh should not surprise anybody.

These two popular parties in Iran were banned after 1953 Coup d'état and many thousands of their members and followers were killed and prisoned by Shah's Regime.

This unjustified revenge of Shah cost him heavily during 1979 Revolution, when these two parties came out from hiding and allied with Khomeini.

If the Shah would have listened to the warnings of these two parties for twenty-five years or had some mercy, perhaps revolution would never happen.

It really boils down to bigotry of the Shah and his disrespect for proposals.

During twenty-five years when Shah cooperating with CIA and was appointed as Jandarm of the Persian Gulf, there was a communist uprising in Oman. Shah sends Iranian Military to help Sultan Ghaboos to restore his Monarchy. Iranian troops lost more than seven hundred of its best forces. But Sultan Ghaboos forgave the three heads of rebellion and appointed them as Ministers until his death.

Perhaps the Shah could learn from Sultan Ghaboos, where Oman is a leading country among Arab states for democracy and human rights.

Second incident which awakened CIA, was the Coup in Afghanistan, which the corrupt SAVAK (Shah Security Service) neither could predict nor prevent

Many other reasons for 1979 Revolution are worthy to consider, but the most significant statement should be a quote from Prime Minister Mehdi Bazargan, the first Prime Minister after 1979 Revolution: "Shah was the Leader of 1979 Revolution".

After four decades, the people of Iran realize they are not battling just an individual, like the Shah, whose departure eliminated his dynasty. Even with the death of the Islamic Regime Leader, there are many Ayatollahs to replace him.

People have realized changing the President or even the Supreme Leader will not change anything in the country with this Islamic State Constitution, a constitution the people were forced to accept after they were cheated and voted “Yes” to Islamic Government as Khomeini put in their imagination.

Iranians, in general, were not politically consciousness or aware of facts at 1979.

In 1978, a group of Iranian scholars wrote a draft of a “Secular Constitution” and, when Ayatollah Khomeini was in Paris, he accepted the principles of that constitution and also agreed that later this constitution would be approved by a special parliament, traditionally in Iran called “Majles Moassesan” or “Constitutional Expert Body”.

This was the biggest lie and Khomeini later admitted to this, as one of his “Religious Decree”.

His big lie attracted everybody-- communists, socialists, monarchists, women, young and old, atheists and religious of all faiths.

Only a few months after the Islamist victory, they called for an “Islamic Expert Majles”, instead of a “Constitutional Expert Majles” and wrote a constitution different from the draft Ayatollah had agreed a few months before.

Several years after this, at the peak of the war with Iraq, amendment to this constitution gave absolute power to the Leader as a representative of Allah on Earth, (Velayat Faghih) without the people even realizing how it happened.

Apart from those who were massacred by the Islamic State and more than one million who perished from the war between Ayatollah Khomeini and Saddam Hussein, the biggest losers have been and will be the youths and women!

It is useless to describe the behavior of the Taliban in Afghanistan or Buku Haram in Nigeria, ISIS in Syria and Iraq or their look-alike in Iran. Even in a modern semi-European society like Turkey, the Deputy Prime Minister said in June 2014, “Women should not smile in public as this is against their dignity and .....”. It is, indeed, unfortunate to see democracy was wiped out in Turkey by Erdogan takeover.

What would have happened in Turkey if the Islamists who came to power in a democratic election had a free hand to advance their agenda without a military to safeguard the country’s secular constitution?

The answer is simple: Go back to 1979 in Iran!

Iran, a country with social freedom, enjoying its best economic boom (even better than 2010 Arab Emirates of the Southern Persian Gulf). But with a 1906 Constitution, which was destroyed by a dictator and the Royal Army, whose commander-in-chief runs away, collapses leaving no military to defend even the destroyed Royal Constitution.

What became blatantly apparent was the Shah’s disqualification to lead the country.

Iran's 1979 experience saved the Nation of Egypt!

Islamists in modern societies come to power with lots of pretenses to freedom and gradually change the society according to their Sharia Laws.

The Muslim Brotherhood in Egypt took advantage of the vacuum created during the dictatorship of Hosni Mubarak. In a society where there were no political leaders, like Iran of 1979, they came to power with help from well-organized Muslim Brotherhood groups. Just a few months later, they showed their true face.

If it was not Egypt Military Force, the country would have become the Islamic State of Egypt in no time.

Chapter Six

A prospective look to the future      page 93

The “Teen Years” (2013-2019) in the Middle East have been and will continue to be a proxy war between Shia Iran and the Salafists countries of the Arabian Peninsula.

Salafi, meaning “original Islam”, is an Islamic sect with no tolerance and deviation from the original Islam Sharia.

Understanding these facts about Salafi, Sunni and Shia bring us to the argument Prime Minister Tony Blair put forward: With a Shia Islamite regime in Iran, one cannot stop Salafis abandoning their core belief to kill Shia infidels (Rafezi, Majoos, Safavi).

Shia can go to Saudi Arabia, the land of the Salafi, perform the ceremony of Hajj, pray and even live in Saudi Arabia, but Salafi cannot tolerate any deviation from original Islam and the propagators of Shia.

Other demonstrations of this proxy war between Iranian Shia and Saudi Salafism are the massacre in Syria and Yemen over the past years and what happened in northern Iraq in Mosul and Tikrit by ISIS.

There is no need to listen to Political Science professors to understand what is going on there.

Handing over Iraq to a Shia Government, not bombing Iran and not overthrowing Bashar Assad of Syria has made Saudi Arabia very unhappy!

Their Taliban cronies are fighting back in Afghanistan, Syria and Iraq. Jihadists from all over the world, financed by Saudis, Qatar and the United Arab Emirate are in Pakistan, Afghanistan, Syria, Iraq to counter Shia followers. It is as simple as that!

Can the U.S. or Europe stop that? No!

Can U.S. or Europe stop Jihadists, Al-Qaida, Taliban, Boku Haram and ISIS (ISIL, Daesh) hatreds towards Shia? No!

In fact, Taliban's were trained and founded by US to fight with Soviets in eighties and presently to counter Iran.

It makes no difference a moderate president like Mohammad Khatami or a fanatic president like Mahmood AhmadiNejad or a pragmatic president like Akbar Rafsanjani or a diplomatic president like Hassan Rouhani is President in Iran.

As per the Iran's Constitution, all the power is in the hand of Supreme Leader and he cannot deviate one inch from principles of the Shia Constitution, although he can give "Holiday" to the Pillars of Islam to safeguard the regime and its Constitution.

The United States got ready to leave Afghanistan too soon, while Taliban have never been stronger. This leaves no alternative but to make a deal with them as far as Ayatollahs concern.

The graduates of Madrasa, built for five decades ago by Saudi's, are coming out in great numbers, young and energetic. Some of them might go to Harvard or Princeton to get a degree from a top university in the West. Therefore, releasing some old terrorists from Guantanamo prison will not have any effect on terrorism.

Although the nuclear issue with Iran is almost defused, and will be resolved one way or another, still many Americans criticize the Obama administration for not being tough.

In eaHis words, promising a government respectful of the people and justice for all, gave way to tyranny.

Promises of fairness and honesty gave way to theft.

Appointment to a high position was not viewed as an opportunity to serve the people with honor but instead as an opportunity to gain personal wealth.

Some examples are staggering. Ayatollah Khamenei may have gained over 90 billion dollars. His son has gained in excess of ten billion. Other regime leaders have likewise profited.

But the regime leaders' theft of their countrymen's wealth, as hateful as it may be, is nothing compared to the far crueler theft of their freedom, dignity and culture.

Over time, stolen money can be recovered, at least to some extent. But the loss of individual freedom, personal dignity and culture is much more difficult to reverse. Yet, if Iran is to prosper in years to come as a great nation—not only in terms of wealth but also in terms of honor and dignity—that national future can only come about if the freedom and dignity of the people are restored and protected.

There are surely many ways that this happy outcome could come about. In the following paragraphs, it will describe one such course of events. It takes into account the Iranian people's traditional values, ones that reach back perhaps three thousand years. It likewise takes into account recent social developments in Iran, such as greatly expanded opportunities for women's education. And this scenario takes into account possible, perhaps even likely, events in other nations that have had traditional ties to Iran, some of them extending back many hundreds of years.

What follows is a story of the remainder of the decade. It is speculative history. It describes political events in the United States, and Israel. Each of these nations, in its own way, has had a historical impact on Iran and, more important, on the thinking and traditional values of the Iranian people. Events in these three nations can have a favorable impact on the Iranian people, as they look forward to restoring the nation.

In addition, this story describes the restoration of a constitutionally guaranteed rule of law in Iran, one that respects the honor and dignity of every Iranian—male or female, of whatever ethnicity, of whatever political values, and of whatever religious belief.

The United States in November 2016 election changed forever and perhaps Geopolitics of the World Changed.

We should leave the White Nationalistic, Anti-Immigrant Policies and Uncivil War with Democrats of President Trump and concentrate on his foreign policies, which changes the World Order.

Weakening NATO, getting closer to Putin, distancing from China, sale of more arm to Arabs to counter Iran.

But the Ibrahim Accord have been the subject of many debates since the election and should be regarded as great achievement of this decade.

In the Middle East and Southwest Asia, American military efforts to prevent establishment of a new caliphate had little success. The Islamic State (IS) controlled far more territory than it did in 2014.

All Muslim nations—Sunni and Shiite—became threatened.

And militants belonging to, or encouraged by, IS had already conducted terrorist acts in Europe and the United States.

The first such American efforts began in 2017, when the Trump Administration abandon the Nuclear Deal.

With Iran, that deal took more than three years negotiations with E.U. delegations. This withdrawal of American was a blow to dignity of the E.U. members.

One of the first initiatives of the Trump Administration is passage of apply such sanctions as visa restrictions and asset seizure to those regime leaders (and members of immediate families).

The Trump Administration's purposes included matters of vital interest to the United States.

Efforts by earlier administrations to come to an agreement with Iran's clerical regime to end Iran's efforts to develop nuclear weapons had failed miserably. It was increasingly evident that if such a goal were to be achieved, it could only be accomplished by an Iranian government more responsive to the will of the people. The basic purpose of American foreign policy in the region became fostering peaceful regime change in Iran.

If it happens, this objective found an ally in an unexpected place—Israel.

Netanyahu, long-time Prime Minister of Israel and advocate of a ‘two state’ solution to his nation’s ongoing Arab-Israeli conflict, succeeded in forming a multi-party coalition in June 2017 with himself as prime minister.

Netanyahu Among his duties was overseeing Israel’s peace initiatives and ongoing peace talks with Palestinian representatives. Benjamin Netanyahu is described as a ‘hard-liner,’ but just as reasonably be described as a vocal peace advocate. About Iran he has commented that Israel and Iran have a lot in common to be friends.

Quite understandably, Israelis, having fought three major wars against Arab nations, are particularly sensitive to any possibility that they might be overwhelmed by a national enemy. It is for this reason that a basic consideration of Israel’s foreign and military policy is the prevention of any potential enemy developing an atomic arsenal. The nation most likely to accomplish that feat—the nation with a sufficient level of technology and scientific expertise— is Iran.

To be fair to Israel, Iran’s leaders and Ayatollahs in the past few decades have called for the destruction of Israel, something that never happened when Iran was ruled by the Shah.

The Pahlavi regime was hated by many Iranians because of its abuse of power. But that regime’s peaceful relationship with Israel did not contribute to the people’s anger.

Historically, Iran was the first country to recognize Israel’s Independent country.

Iranian people have no animosity towards Israel. The Iranian Jews are the oldest group who have lived in Iran when Cyrus the Great invaded Babylon and freed Jews there.

While both Israel and the United States consider the development of an Iranian nuclear force as inherently dangerous, the Sunni Arab nations are terrified at the possibility. There are persistent rumors that, should Iran develop a nuclear weapon, Saudi Arabia might contract with Pakistan to store weapons from its atomic arsenal in Arabia. If that were to occur, the entire Middle East would become far more unstable than is already the case today. And Iranian nuclear weapons, under the control of Shia Ayatollahs, would pose a fundamental threat, just as that development would likely threaten Israel.

However, an Iran with atomic power can reverse America foreign policy.

During the election campaign that led to his success, Netanyahu argued that prior efforts to prevent Iran from developing nuclear weapons had done no more than delay the program. As a practical matter, Israel's national goal could only be achieved if the existing Iranian government were replaced by one that reflected the nation's traditional moral and social values—ones that, in many respects, reach back to the time of Cyrus the Great. With that purpose in mind, Prime Minister Netanyahu, working in conjunction with U.S. President Trump, opened regular support of the Iranian people who seek freedom. If Trump reelected in 2024 we will see more changes in Iran. The initial response of Iran's clerical leaders (Ayatollah Ali Khamenei and his senior associates) to the American-Israeli initiative was anger, accusations of treason, and threats of severe punishment. However, like so many tyrannical regimes in the past, Iran's leadership over the decades had lost what was once the fervent support of so many citizens. After years of illegal financial dealings and reports of abuse of women and girls by government officials, men and women who had once put their hopes in the 1979 revolution now felt only bitterness and betrayed. Thus, regime efforts to call out crowds of supporters had little effect. The regime leadership was now in the position of trying to retain power, even as popular support eroded.

The 14 People Manifestation, a boost in the road to “Change Islamic Constitution of Iran”      page 99

Looking back during presidency of Hassan Rohani in Iran and Obama Administration, while the nuclear deal was in process and ISIS was almost stop progressing, people of Iran were hopeful that crisis will be over and they can resume a normal life.

The Nuclear Deal reached and some one hundred Billion Dollars of Iranian assets was released and ISIS was almost defeated, but years passed and people of Iran did not see any change in the misery they were living in.

In Iran, a nuclear agreement is reached with European. A full, verifiable inspection of the nuclear facilities, no issue dividing Iran and the European, except for Human Rights, exists.

But for the US, more important than a full verification and inspection are guarantee that Iran will never have Atomic Bomb and spread of terrorism and proxy wars, which are clearly written in the Islamic Constitution of Iran.

US withdrawal from Nuclear Deal did not surprise anybody in the US, but European disagree and tried to find a way doing business with Iran and go around American Sanction. EU is generally a crony of the US and economically weak over all.

Sanctions by the US are going to be stronger gradually and people will begin to see some light of US support at the end of the tunnel. But years have passed and there is no improvement in the country's economy. Large-scale unemployment is the same as before and social freedom is getting even worse, as population keep growing 3% annually. On June, 2019 when, after many years demand by students in the Universities, finally fourteen political activists declared a manifestation; demanding a complete overhaul of the Islamic Constitution of Iran and resignation of the Supreme Leader! Under Iran's constitution, the Ayatollah, as Supreme Leader, has the right to overturn decisions by elected officials.

Making matters worse for the regime, a number of western nations, led by the United States, announced sanctions affecting a large number of the clerical leadership. Billions of dollars in foreign assets, belonging to the regime, were blocked and Iranians found themselves unwelcome in Europe or America. There was no alternative for the leadership of the Iranian regime but to find a conciliatory approach to the people before popular unrest destroyed their assets inside Iran. It was during this period of confusion that Iranian President Hassan Rouhani, Ali Larijani, Speaker of Parliament, Ebrahim Raisi, Head of Judiciary, all three appointed by Ayatollah Khamenei and together four of them "National Security Council" decided to make war with the US, by downing the American drone in Persian Gulf. Fortunately, President Trump took a very intelligent action and did not respond to that, instead respond few months later, by killing Ghasem Solimani commander of Ghods Revolutionary Guard in Iraq.

Demand for change of constitution was growing inside

Iran and outside Iran, more than one thousand political activists signed a petition in support of “14 People Manifestation” for change of the Constitution.

The National Security Council came up with another plan to downplay the change of constitution movement. The Government announced price of gas to be tripled from 1000 Toman per Liter to 3000 Toman per Liter.

This sudden increase caused many demonstrations all over Iran and in the month of October, more than five thousand people were killed. As far as Regime concerns, this was a correct and clever move by the Government, since they were prepared to kill more than ten thousand if it was necessary to make people forget the Constitution Movement.

At January 4, US President Donald Trump has said that he ordered a precision strike to “terminate” a top Iranian commander General Ghasem Solimani who was plotting “imminent and sinister attacks” on Americans in Iraq, adding that the decision was one of deterrence rather than aggression.

The first warning came from secret intelligence signals in the evening before the attack. By 11 p.m. on January 7, 2020 most of the US troops at al-Asad were sent to bunkers, and a few had been flown out, according to commanders at the base. Only essential personnel, such as tower guards and drone pilots, would remain unsheltered. They were protecting against a ground assault which base commanders expected would follow the missile attack.

Ground forces never came, and troops would only reemerge from their shelters at the break of dawn.

The strike had ended just before 4 a.m.

Fortunately, no casualties and few injuries.

And going back to stronger sanction and Ayatollahs rhetoric.

No matter what, the road the 20ties is clear and ends to Change of Constitution in Iran.

History's future road may presently be dark and impenetrable but a vision of how change will come to Iran and the Middle East is hereby offered.

After the nuclear issue is resolved and many sanctions were lifted in 2016, people see no difference in their lives.

The U.S. Congress, well before the 2016 Presidential election, passes a unanimous resolution urging the President to impose a “Smart Humanitarian Sanction” on Iranian leaders. The sanction covers nearly two thousand Ayatollahs and Iranian regime leaders recognized as human rights violators in Iran, together with their families and associates, denying them visas to enter the United States and, in some cases, finding and blocking their assets.

For the first time, this meaningful sanction has a direct effect on the regime rather than the people.

President Trump, signs the executive order and makes that resolution a law to be renewed every year by the president-elect. American action sets a response cycle in motion. The following actions may not happen immediately but a momentum has been established.

Canada may follow suit, but it takes the European Union, except for Great Britain, a little longer to agree with that kind of sanction.

EU members are obligated to follow American suits.

All over Iran, people are reading and joking about the Islamic Republic's Constitution.

The presidential election in the U.S. and debate over human rights in Iran give the Iranian people encouragement. So, they decide they should do something about it. Small groups all over the country, discussing a new constitution, grow larger and larger and, in some big cities, begin exchanging notes together.

Rather than write the whole constitution, which should be done by a special parliament, "Majles Shoraye Meli", people more or less agree on the framework of some unchangeable items of Iran's future Constitution.

These items include:

- 1- The new Constitution should be based on the principles of the Universal Declaration of Human Rights;
- 2- Separation of Religion from any governance of the State (Separation of Church and State).
- 3- Any Iranian, who has lived two-thirds of his life outside Iran, will not be eligible for any ministerial or leadership role in the government;
- 4- The country will have a ceremonial Head of State, who may be called the Shah or the Queen or Leader or President. This individual will be recommended by the elected Prime Minister to the Parliament “Majles” and will be appointed for a ten-year term as the ceremonial Head of State by a two-thirds majority of the Parliament. This person has no authority to rule the country.

5- The first head of state, after the change of regime, could be a woman.

These five simple principles of the future Constitution become a road map and the people’s protest agenda.

The 2020 election in the United States elects President Biden, a Democrat, which gives another hope to the Iranian opposition.

The 2020 Election in Iran comes and goes as few other past elections. People who realize their meaning do not even bother to listen to the debates or even the outcome of the election.

Billions of dollars foreign assets, belonging to elite families of the regime and their families living in Europe and America happily with no incentive to go back, makes the opposition of the Islamic Regime, outside Iran meaningless, useless and immaterial.

The Biden Administration and Iran's New President Ebrahim Raisi: Joe Biden, a courier politician, who has been at the top of Iranian politics since 1979 Revolution during Carter Administration, and Ebrahim Raisi who admits that he has six grade education when he started studying in Shia Clergies School (Hozavi). Will it be different when Trump with no political experience was against Hassan Rohani who has been at the head of National Security and politics of Islamic regime since 1979.

No difference what so ever!

From what we have learned from history after the Second World War, The Middle East is where the majority of the World Energy Sources comes from and is a region, which has been the biggest consumer of Arms in the World.

Therefore, the direction of the politics is set by these forces who are the major elements of the economy of East and West.

Few years before 1979 Revolution in Iran, it was heard several times by the Shah saying: "They want me to attack Saddam.

But he is my brother and Iraqis, how can I do that?"

It may be a conspiracy, but worth researching that Khomeini was helped to gain power so that a war between Iran and Iraq could start.

The eight years' war (1980-1988) between Iran and Iraq which pumped two trillion Dollars into East and West economy, destroyed many infra-Structures of two countries and more than one million young Irani and Iraqi perished.

It was a war between Khomeini and Saddam Housain.

The devastation of war never ended when Saddam attacked Kuwait,

Taliban of Afghanistan gave rise to Al-Ghaedah and 9/11

American war in Afghanistan and Iraq followed.

ISIS, Yaman almost forgotten as Taliban came back to Afghanistan in 2022, with ISIS new hiding place for future attack on Iran.

This story will never end that Middle East Conflict temporarily moved to Ukraine and God knows if Taiwan is next or invasion of Iran by Taliban.

Although Putin not in favor of American

As an Iranian-American who has been living more than half of my life as an immigrant, I don't know why I regard Iran as not only the center of the world, but also the center of all troubles in the world.

In 2012, I wrote a small book called, "Perplexity of Iran" and designed this picture as cover of the book, to show every trouble spot in the World is somehow related to Iran and solving Iran's gig puzzle will help to resolve the other trouble spot.

Although Iran has been fragmented by Islam over the past

1400 years, the Greater Iran exist from Indus River to Mediterranean Sea and Tajikistan to Sea of Yemen.

At the back of the book, it was written:

Among many warmongering remarks, Prime Minister Tony Blair made a sensible comment once about Iran where he saw no end in the conflicts in Iraq and Afghanistan and war against terrorism, while the present regime in Iranian is in power. If that is so, then we should ask: what should be done? Unfortunately, there has been nothing on “the table” except war as far back as our memory will allow. In this book an inexpensive and humane alternative is suggested.

This alternative solution is in the conclusion of the book after reviewing a brief history of the region.

The most significant point raised here is to reject the notion of the existence of a historic violent conflict between Shi'a and Sunni. However, emphasis is made about a two-hundred-yearold hatred and animosity between Wahhabi and Shi'a.

In other words, a proxy war between Wahhabi and Shi'a has been going on in the region and American troops could be regarded as bystander of this proxy war.

However, going back to the book introduced earlier, "Iran in the triangle of misery" and how Ayatollahs brought into power, it was argued that Ayatollahs will be in power using three tools of Poverty, Misery and Crisis.

Poverty and Misery are imposed on the Iranian People to make them chained to Ayatollahs handouts.

Crisis is to chain the Military Industry and Oil Companies to protect them not to fall. Ayatollahs need international enemies and they create one if they don't have one.

That is why without Iran, there would have never been crisis in the Middle East, since Iran Iraq War to the present crisis which are also indirectly related to Iranian regime.

As Tony Blair once said: there will be no solution to the deep conflict of the Middle East with Palestinian and Israeli conflict until Ayatollahs regime are in power In Iran.

The Shah of Iran once said: "If I go, the Geopolitics of the World will change". But it wasn't the Shah for stability of the region, it was the support of the West since 1946.

Wonder a man with such visionary, why he left Iran so easily and hand over the county to Ayatollah Khomeini so peacefully?

Nobody denies that Iran was the Island of Stability and Iranian people were enjoying prosperity, happiness and progress during seventies.

But the big picture was Military Industries Complex and Soviet Union!

Amir Abbas Hovayda was the selected Prime Mister of the Shah for thirteen years and the Shah's Court Minister in 1979, but he did not leave Iran during Revolution. He was arrested and shot in the back by ayatollah Khalkhali, while his trial was going on.

Freydoon Hovayda who was Sha's Ambassador in the United Nation, written a book in French and tells story of one night having dinner with his brother who was Court Minister at the time and most confidant of the Shah.

He quotes his bother very vividly that I told the Shah; "Your family, especially Ashraf receiving commission from any purchase or contract by the Government and this corruption is well known by everybody".

The Shah replies; "Receiving commission is everywhere in the World and is not illegal. Why my family shouldn't do the same?".

Two years after this, Shah in his last interview with Davis Frost of NBC said: "before me nearly one and half million educated and rich Iranian left the country. Where are they now?"

Among shah's friend there were Alam, long time court Minister and Ayadi his private medical doctor who were so close, that he shared everything with them even extramarital affairs. They all died with Liver Cancer including Shah himself. Among shah's friend there were two, who were handling his finances in Switzerland. Four Star General Toofanian who was arranging the Military purchases and Houshang Ansari who was managing commission received from sale of oil and other big Government transaction.

All these moneys were deposited in different Trusts in Switzerland with special instruction that they all belong to the Shah of Iran and nobody has the right to know or do anything with that.

The Islamic Government of Iran in the eighties made a long effort to get twenty Billion Dollars that according to the National Iranian Oil Company books, has been deducted and deposited in the Shah's account.

After one year, they could not get a penny from those accounts.

Even the castles belonging to the Royal Family of Iran. After the death of Shah, few of Crown Prince Reza friends in Los Angeles gathered and the Crown Prince Reza swore to Quran that he is the Reza Shah II according to the old 1906 Iranian Constitution "Mashrooteh".

Reza Pahlavi with this new title that his followers in Los Angeles gave him, made an attempt to recover his inheritance which is estimated between twenty to sixty Billion Dollars with no success.

However, with cash money over hundred million Dollars in Reza Pahlavi own account when he arrives in the US few years before 1979 Revolution and estimated of hundred fifty million Dollars Real Estates, with support of the US he has been regarded as the main opposition to the Ayatollahs regime. The opposition organization to the Ayatollahs Regime outside Iran becomes more ridiculous when another top opposition, which has the support of western powers is Mujaheddin Khalgh Organization (MKO) with its President Mrs. Maryam Rajavi. These two, Maryam Rajavi and Reza Pahlavi according to Ayatollah Rafsanjani are the dream opposition for Islamic Republic of Iran as the first one is the most hated organization among patriotic Iranian and the second one has a dirty resume since his arrival to the US, up to now. Nothing is in Reza Pahlavi resume, except surfing on the events of Iran and asking US Congress for one Billion Dollars to fight with Iranian Regime and collecting money from different sources.

Grandson of Ayatollah Khomeini, who is known as a moderate Islamist in the regime, when he comes to America, Reza Pahlavi personally picks him up from Airport and he is stays in Pahlavi residence in Falls Church.

The hope of these two oppositions and their followers are perhaps one day US or Israel attack Iran and days after the confusion and ambiguity they become the Shah or President in Iran. Their slogan and subject of their rhetoric and speeches are Human Rights, Free Election, Referendum, Freedom for all,

Equal Rights for Women, Federalism, Good Relation with other Countries and other populist words which everybody wants.

Certainly, the Intelligent Services of USA and Israel are well informed about past record and present activities of these two so called opposition to the Islamic regime of Iran.

But question will remain, how is the American Administration and all the radio televisions who are known as affiliated to Western Governments and those who are publicly known financed by Saudi Arabia act as supporter and of these two and they are invited by the Congress to make speeches Infront of Foreign Committees?

One simple answer is: It is not the time for Ayatollahs Regime to go! They have to make harmless crisis in the region so that the Arm Sale stays hot. Therefore, these two oppositions will keep the people busy and entertained.

When President Trump was elected, there was a jubilant celebration by Reza Pahlavi Followers and Maryam Rajavi Cult. They were hoping President Trump will act Militarily.

Mayor Giuliani and National Security Advisor Mr. John Bolton in speeches in Albany claim that they will celebrate next year in Tehran.

Jon Bolton has been a supporter of war with Iran.

However, Mr. Pompeo in speech infront of one thousand Iranian American whom by special invitation only 700 of MKO follower and 300 Reza Pahlavi followers were gathered in Ragan Library said: “We don’t want to change Regime in Iran. We want them to change their behavior”.

Certainly Mr. Pompeo has read Islamic Republic of Iran Constitution and he knows Ayatollahs act according to their constitution. You can read few items of the Islamic Republic of Iran Constitution in the Appendix.

There are many groups of Iranian diasporas who call themselves Opposition to the Ayatollahs Regime. They are very active outside Iran with hundreds of members and followers who lack financial support and their voices can hardly be heard.

When people inside Iran, hear and see all the news of opposition in Voice of America, BBC and European Media are about MKO and Reza Pahlavi, whom they have no regards for, they have come to a conclusion that US and Israel really don't want to change the regime and it is not in their interest to force Ayatollahs to go.

When people see the US Sanctions helps Ayatollahs to go around the sanctions and benefit from that by depositing Billions of Dollars commission in their American and European accounts and they suffer directly and indirectly, they lose confidence on truthfulness of American Administration.

How come all American products are sold in the Iranian Market with many hundred percent marked up, where the benefits go into the pocket of Ayatollahs and their families live in America and Europe with fat bank account?

How come American Administration have read the Islamic Republic Constitution or at least few items of that here in the Appendix and still wants the Regime to change its behavior?

There are many questions remain to be answered, but let's look at China and Putin relation with Iran.

The Chinese, since their economic revolution by Deng Xiaoping, always look at Iran as an Economical-Hub. Iran for the Chinese was a bridge to West and center of the Silk Road.

As they lost the battle to Russian in the Iranian theater, Chinese went around Iran by the “China Belt and Road Initiative” plan and used Russia to get to Europe and Pakistan to get to Indian Ocean. But Iran always remains as Economical Strategic Treasure for the Chinese, if Russia allows them.

When Russian discovered vast gas reserves in the Caspian Sea, Putin by a secret agreement with Ayatollahs, monopolized this gas reservoir for Russian. In 2022 secretly involved Chinese in a pipeline from City of Chaloos at Iranian Caspian Sea to China, before invasion of Ukraine.

The Ayatollahs to overshadow this theft of Iranian assets, came with a plan to destroy one of the most beautiful and environmentally valuable pieces of land in Miankaleh at Caspian Sea to build a Petrochemical Plant.

China is a big country with a Central Government and zero tolerance to corruption. That is why there is no government contracts with China that government official could benefit or receive commission. But there are thousands private companies in China that Ayatollahs have brought to Iran to rub the country together from fishery to generating Bitcoin.

The story of Russia is different when Putin came to power.

Putin made a lot of efforts to protect the interests of his country and restore this disintegrated country to its former power and end the chaos, and his name will undoubtedly be recorded in the ranks of one of the great and serving leaders of Russia.

Putin is an athlete, educated, intellectual and a unique politician. We have seen Russia before and after the collapse and we know what great services Putin has done for the glory and greatness of Russia. He destroyed all the opportunities that could make Iran strong, stable and rich in the region.

He benefited abundantly from the weakness of officials and their illusions and arrogance.

By creating a deviation in the political thoughts of the statesmen of the Islamic Republic, he led them astray and did not allow the Iranian nation to take advantage of the opportunities for their prosperity and comfort.

He used the Islamic Republic as a tool against America and the West, and in all political interactions he used Iran's card for the national interests of his country.

Putin did not make any concessions or services to Iran and Iranians and only supported the empty menus and demands of political idiot dwarfs in Iran to shout 'death to America' as much as they can.

He established the best political relations with Israel, which was called an imaginary enemy according to the Islamic Republic, and by establishing a balance of power in Syria, he entered the Mediterranean Sea.

With one hand, he allowed Israel to destroy the bases of the Islamic Republic and massacre the Iranian forces, and with the other hand, he presented the Quran to the leader of Iran, expressed friendship and defended their Islamic ideology in conquering the world, while the Muslims he massacred, suppressed and destroyed his own country in Chechnya.

With fake promises, Putin would take the 50% share of the Caspian Sea out of Iran's possession and hand over smile to Iranians.

Putin blocked Iran's way of any negotiations with Western powers and regional countries in order to embrace a weak and helpless Iran. Under the pretext of defending Iran's nuclear program and building the Bushehr nuclear power plant, he took billions of dollars in bribes from Iran and finally rebuilt and revived the destroyed nuclear system of his own country.

By admission of Russian Nuclear Agency experts, they charged Iran more than half Trillion Dollars to send specialists to Iran to learn German Technology and finally gave Iran a plant, which never worked with its full capacity of one thousand Megawatts.

By destroying Iran's oil and gas industry and opening its energy market to Europe, Putin destroyed all of Iran's industrial achievements in the past fifty years and opened the Chinese market to the Iranian people.

Without any doubt, nearly half of the value of Russian foreign exchange exports has been provided with the cooperation and efforts of the leaders of the Iranian government. He stopped Iran's gas exports to Europe and turned Russia into the world's only source of gas exports, which was only possible with the servility and stupidity of the leaders of the Iranian Government. Putin pushed Iran towards an oil embargo so that the entire share of Iran's oil exports goes to Russia. This means that Iran, the most important member of OPEC, lost all its oil export position.

He took full advantage of Iran's financial resources, Iran's gold mines, Iran's atomic energy, Iran's defense system, and Iran's ports and airports, and instead voted for sanctions against Iran in line with the world, and never took a full step in supporting Iran, even in the preparation of the corona vaccine, which threatened the lives of millions of Iranians and sent them to death, did not do anything important.

And all such actions are called politics, a dirty politics that wants the prosperity and progress of its country and...

The revelation of several important details from the amazing report that the New York Times announced, that it was delayed due to national issues shows that Putin has used the Iran card to his advantage under Trump.

In this report, it was mentioned how Putin had persuaded Trump to withdraw from the JCPOA and at the same time assured him that Iran would never be able to obtain any nuclear weapons during this period.

This report says that the reason for Putin's confidence is the incredible influence of Russian spies in the body of the Revolutionary Guards and the Ministries of Intelligence of the Islamic Republic, that the Russian intelligence agencies have completely dominated these two important revolutionary institutions of Iran.

The theft of Iran's nuclear information and the assassination of its scientists by Israel was also the result of Russia's intelligence and military assistance to Israel because of these secret agreements between Putin and America.

During this time, Russia has been able to not only strengthen its foot in Syria, but also become a reliable partner for Israel. Commentators on social networks say that if this report is published in full, it will cause a political earthquake in several countries.

Iran was sanctioned and lost the oil market. But it was Russia that took over and swallowed Iran's 4 million oil export quota!!!

Iran was sanctioned, but Russia grabbed the European gas and petrochemical market from Iran and took it all!!!

Iran was sanctioned, but Russia sat on the OPEC chair and kicked Iran out!!!

Iranian youth were martyred in Syria and Iran's capital was destroyed. But Russia swallowed Syria and built a base next to Europe and installed an intercontinental ballistic missile!!!

By cooperating with Israel and locking the S-300, Russia made Iran the target of Israeli planes!!!

Russia refused to buy tomatoes and radishes from Iran, it bought from Turkey in order to swallow the Turkish gas market as well!!!

Russian tour guides get off at Istanbul airport instead of Isfahan airport because no dollar is supposed to be spent in Iran!!!

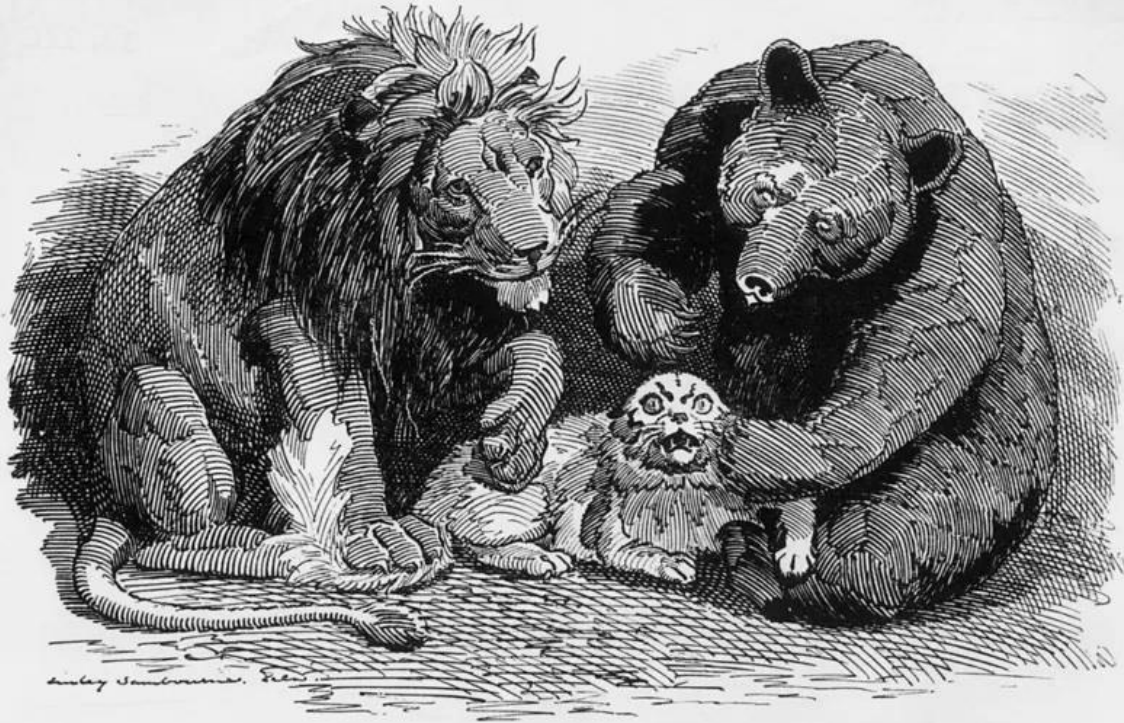

Iranian are still saying “death to America”, until the officials in turn get on the plane and go to Moscow, so that uncle Putin gives instructions, what will be the next plan to destroy Iran. Iran gave everything to Russia and Putin gave a smile and handshake to the Leader!

picture of July 20, 2022

Back to history of Agreement 1907, when British and Russian divided Iran in two parts of North and South of their influence, wonder if at 2022 there is a secret Agreement between Putin and Chinese?

A famous caricature that was published around 1907 in the humorous magazine “Punch” in London and is an allusion to the 1907 agreement.

THE HARMLESS NECESSARY CAT.

BRITISH LION (to Russian Bear), "LOOK HERE! YOU CAN PLAY WITH HIS HEAD, AND I CAN PLAY WITH HIS TAIL, AND WE CAN BOTH STROKE THE SMALL OF HIS BACK."
PERSIAN CAT, "I DON'T REMEMBER HAVING BEEN CONSULTED ABOUT THIS!"

The lion (Britain) tells the bear (Russia) you play with the head of the Persian Cat (Iran) and I play with its tail.

July 1953 Coup d'état, orchestrated by CIA and British Intelligent Service MI6 to topple the democratically elected government of Dr. Mosaddegh and restoring the Government of the Shah in Iran.

For 25 years the Shah like a wounded lion hysterically went on revenge of two parties National Front "Jebheh Meli" and Communist Party "Todeh" by killing, imprisonment and forced immigration of them.

For 25 years the Shah who was a fanatical believer, as he claimed in an interview with Barbara Walters of NBC that he gets messages from the High, gave unlimited power to clergies and Ayatollahs and made no attempt to stop superstitious and false beliefs, hoping by religion he can fight with spread of Communism.

For 25 years the Shah created a political vacuum in Iran and surrounded himself with admirers, flatters and cronies who ran away before him, when 1979 Revolution started.

For 25 years the Shah accumulated a personal wealth in Switzerland which Western Media rank him the wealthiest person on earth and his family apart from gaining substantial wealth, were accused of many wrong doing even smuggling heroin and opium in Switzerland.

For 25 years Iran's underground wealth and help of the private sector brought industrial developments with comfortable life for Elites of the Society.

But after 25 years when his religious allies, whom were his favorite against the other two opposition rebel against him, the Shah turned to National Front “Jebheh Meli” for help.

First Dr. Gholam Hossain Sedighi, who was Minister of Interior in Dr. Mosaddegh Cabinet.

Dr. Sedighi set conditions that Shah did not or could not accept: Shah should not leave the country and holds the Army together by staying in Kish Island in Persian Gulf and return of wealth of himself and his family.

Second Dr. Shapoor Bakhtiyar (another Sorbonne educated fellow) who accepted Shah’s condition to leave the country.

But Shah before leaving Iran cheated Bakhtiyar by ordering Army not to obey Bakhtiyar! Instead gave all his constitutions authority of the Shah to his childhood friend and confidant four-star General Hossein Fardoost.

Fardoost being classmate of the Shah and later head of “SAVAK the Shah’s Security and Intelligent Service”, “Royal Inspection” and “Special Office of the Shah” in the mind of the Shah could be another General Fazlullah Zahedi who conducted 1953 Coup d’etat for him. But mysterious life of Fardoost, today is known for every Iranian.

Some believe one reason things went wrong at 1979 was over a beautiful blond girl whose name was Tala (meaning Gold in Persian).

Fardoost felt in love with a daughter of one-star General and wanted marry her. He takes his beautiful fiancé to introduce her to the Shah. The Shah likes the girl and ask Fardoost to give her an apartment in the Niavaran Castel and she stays there as the Shah's "Sigheh" (Four wives and unlimited Sigheh are allowed in Shi'a). this should be the reason of internal hatred of Fardoost had toward the Shah. Fardoost few weeks after departure of the Shah, surrendered the Army to Khomeini and transfer all the intelligent services of the Shah "SAVAK" to Ayatollahs Regime. Only in recent years Fardoost, in nine one-hour videos explains the corruption's during Shah's Regime and influence of Freemason and British Intelligent Service in the Iranian Government.

Solution and looking to the future:

After invasion of Ukraine there have been many talks, comments and opinions how this conflict could be prevented. Among all the articles one should ponder on one sentence by Dr. Henry Kissinger; "We are now living in a totally new era"! That was a warning and considering the rhetoric's been said in South East Asia, one may worry that Taiwan could be the next conflict zone.

But no matter what, the conflict of the Middle East will remain the same and continue with no solution as long as Ayatollahs are in power in Iran.

The mission of the Ayatollahs Regime from the beginning was to bring crises in the region for maintaining in power and also serve the Industrial Military Complex of the East and the West.

Without crisis Ayatollahs are gone and the Middle East and perhaps the World will enter into stability and calmness.

With these economic benefits for the West and the East and Ayatollahs themselves, it is hard to convince any politician that Regime in Iran must change!

It is a well-known fact among people inside Iran, that American Sanctions helps regime leaders to continue their corruption and any military strike either by US or Israel will stabilize Ayatollahs Regime for another decades.

At first year of Iran Iraq war in eighties, we heard Ayatollah Khomeini saying, “This war is a God’s Gift”.

During the war when a military strategy was “human wave” forward going over mines and reports were given to Ayatollah Khomeini about mass casualties of many thousands’ young soldiers, Khomeini replies were, “Islam needs blood”.

Nobody in a right mind at that time understood what could be the reason for such statements. Nobody could understand how all these devastations and loss of life to be God’s Gift.

But some years after the war many of the top ranks of the regime saying, “if Saddam delayed invading Iran only for one year, we wouldn’t be here”. In fact, Saddam saved the Islamic Regime by invading Iran.

Today, Israel could delay the Fall of Ayatollahs for many years if she bombs Iran’s Nuclear facilities.

Today, US will delay the Fall of Ayatollahs if continues imposing Sanction on Iranian people and delay Smart Sanctions on Ayatollah’s families, cronies and Iranian Oligarchy.

Smart Sanction by itself does not work. The US rhetoric must change.

The US administration and Congress could reconsider the Islamic Republic of Iran Constitution and refer to sentences in this constitution which clearly declares war on the US and encourages proxy war on Israel for a major change of policy.

Few articles of the Iran Constitution are in Appendix

One may read these few sentences and ask, why with such clear and unheard-of indications in a country's constitution, neither the US nor Israel object.

As a matter of fact Iran should have been kicked out of the UN because of its Constitution.

The reason is simple; the pragmatic and clever Ayatollah Rafsanjani, after Iran-Iraq war promoted, encouraged two opposition of the Regime at outside Iran; #1 Maryam Rajavi #2 Reza Pahlavi. Maryam Rajavi is much more hated individual than Ayatollah Khalkhali, the butcher in Iran and the organization she is acting as their president, MKO, although right hand of Ayatollah Khomeini and his military arm, but with start of Iran Iraq war, they fought with Iranian forces as one of branches of Saddam Army. They were also responsible for Massacre of Kurds in Iraq. After the War, they occupy some territory in the Western border of Iran, but defeated by resident of the cities they occupied and retreated before Iranian army arrives.

Reza Pahlavi, the son of Late Shah of Iran, although have some followers who remember good life they had during his father's Regime, but is well-known as a womanizer whose interest is only to enrich himself further by receiving donations from anybody he can. After the election of President Mohammad Khatami twenty-five years ago, he openly allied with Rafsanjani followers and has been entertaining the grand-son of Ayatollah Khomeini when he comes to America. Popularity of Reza Pahlavi is more among Iranian-Americans who want to revive the Monarchy Constitution of 1906 and have Reza Pahlavi as Reza Shah II return to Iran as the Shah of Iran. This might be a hopeful thinking for some, but Reza and his wife Yasemin, in an interview with Voice of America at Iranian New Year (Iranian Eid 1400), very clearly said that they have three daughter who have been born in the US and they have no intention of going back to Iran.

It is very unfortunate that the US policy has fallen into Ayatollahs trap and all the Government and nongovernment media cover anything these two are saying.

As a matter of fact, they are saying whatever is in the news and they repeat the same story of human rights, free election, women rights, freedom of press etc. But they don't talk about two things: Constitution and stealing Iranian assets, thefts and corruptions.

Just after Khomeini took control of Iran in February 11, 1979 and people believed that he will keep his promises about Islamic Constitution, people in a referendum at April 1st voted by 98.2% in favor of the Islamic Republic. It did not take a month that promises broken and negotiation for Islamic Constitution in Ayatollahs Parliament, the Body of the Experts (Majles Khobregan) started, which followed by a massive protest all over the country. The most significant protests to the Islamic Constitution were in Kurdistan which ended by what is known as Khalkhali Massacre.

During the eight-year war any protest could be crashed as treachery and after the war there was a period which they call it reconstruction and no time for protests.

But after nearly twenty years of silent protest to the constitution, a moderate Ayatollah Mohammad Khatami ran on two item of constitution 1- Freedom of the Press 2- Torture Eight years Presidency of Mohammad Khatami who ran with those two slogans was full of assassination of newspaper writers and reporters and imprisonment and torture of the protesters. The Torture Bill passed in Majles, but rejected by the Guardian Consul selected by the Supreme Leader based on a “Hadis” that Imam Ali tortured the Jewish Tribe leader for showing their treasure. Therefore, Torture stayed in the Constitution as the law of the land.

In the middle of the debate about “Freedom of the Press”, the Speaker stopped debates and talking and said: “Just now, I have received a Government Order by the Supreme Leader that according to the constitution, press is under his control and Majles has no right to debate the matter!”.

Therefore, the eight years presidency of Khatami ended when he himself finally said: the role of the President in Iran according to the Constitution is like a purchasing agent and government is run by the Supreme Leader. In fact you don't need a President! Then came Mahmood AhmadiNejad Presidency and Nuclear issue and American Sanctions, Yemen and other crisis in the Middle East.

For the second term, people voted heavily to put him out of office. But next day after election, without votes to be counted Supreme Leader announced AhmadiNejad as the President. This constitution crisis caused a massive protest which is called “Green Movement” with a popular slogan “Where is my vote?”.

This movement caused many debates among people specially in the Universities for change of Constitution. After AhmadiNejad who was regarded as the worst president of the Islamic Republic, Ayatollah Hassan Rohani who was head of Regime Security Forces became President. His greatest achievement was the Nuclear Deal Agreement, which was overturned by American withdrawal by President Trump later. Hassan Rohani saw the movement by women and young student as a serious threat to the Regime, so he was attending debates in universities, allowing students to talk freely. He stopped going to university after a student criticized him very heavily and at the end he said: Mr. Rohani you are AhmadiNejattest President.

However, the demand for change of Constitution continues and the Leader for defusing this movement had many seminars and gathering with his presence to talk about Constitution.

One of the heated debates was a speech by your student Ms. Sahar Mehrabi. At the end of speech Ms. Mehrabi went down to talk with the Leader. Leader told her:

“criticizing is a good thing, but don’t exaggerate”.

Finally, fourteen individuals who were Constitution activists got together and at June 2019 declare a manifestation asking for the change of Islamic Republic Constitution and even gone further demanding for resignation of Ayatollah Khamenei, which is known as “14 People Manifestation”.

The 14 People Manifestation in June 2019 triggered many uprisings and finally in November 2019, the total death reached five thousand and Government crackdown was successful.

This movement could be an ideal tool for the US to follow suit and criticize the Islamic Republic Constitution for anti-American sentences, promoting international terrorism and interfering in the affair of the others, which are clearly indicated in the Constitution. This is something the UN should act accordingly.

But unfortunately, the US government and its media, recognize, promote and propagate the two groups of MKO and Reza Pahlavi as opposition to the Islamic Regime, whom they are not favorable and out of touch with any meaningful movement in Iran.

The two groups are both hated by the people of Iran.

As we have reasoned before, military invasion, sanctions in its present form, criticizing Ayatollah Regime for their behavior, condemnation in the international organization, internal strike and protests has not have any effect in the past and will not have any effect in the future.

The only effective movement inside Iran is to follow the 14 People Manifestation and at outside Iran, Smart Sanction by the US on Ayatollahs families and cronies and Oligarchies and connect the Smart Sanction with amendment of the items in the Islamic Regime Constitution, which promote terrorism and fight with the US.

Salvation of Iranian people is to change the Islamic Constitution with a Parliamentary Government Constitution

When we say Parliamentary Government Constitution, it includes every aspect of freedom, democracy and human right.

In the past twenty years many Iranian scholars and groups have written suggested constitutions and been archived in the website www.ghanoon.org

But the Parliamentary Government Constitution suggested by Dr. Nasr Ahmadi is recommended to be considered at future Parliament “Majles Shora-ye Meli”, when the members will write future constitution of Iran.

Furthermore, after Iran having a Parliamentary Government Constitution, people can decide if they want to have a Shah or a President.

Among people in Iran, those who follow the 14 People Manifestation, they believe until the country reaches to the stage where in an elected parliament, a new constitution to be written, the country should go through eight phases of events.

After the 14 People Manifestation at June 2019, Iran is that the fourth phase.

Phase five will reach when US recognizes the Constitution Movement in Iran and her demand would be an amendment to those Articles in the constitution, which are promoting terrorism and hostility with the US and put sanctions on Oligarchies of Iran, until the constitution is changed.

If the US help people of Iran for following change of constitution,

US will be with the people of Iran and very soon, Ayatollahs will start negotiation with Iranian leaders inside Iran for Election Laws to have a fair and free election at phase six.

At phase seven, there will be a Parliament (Majles) election.

At phase eight a new Constitution will be written and approved by the people with a referendum.

Since Phase three, which was Green Movement, when Protests started at the second term of AhmadiNejad Presidency, Reza Pahlavi and Maryam Rajavi, with their strong connections to the US Government have overshadow any efforts of people of Iran.

To sum up and make the finally conclusion we must remember the efforts and struggle of the Iranian people to have a constitution and limit the power of the Shah and Ayatollahs have a hundred fifty years history.

But they failed when the clergies and the Shah agreed on 1906 “Mashrooteh” Constitution. Nevertheless, with this constitution and help of “Majles” (Parliament) Iran changed unbelievably. The Shah, Ahmad Shah of Ghajar Dynasty was spending most of his time in France when Reza Khan, who was working for Russian with help of British with few of his colleagues siege the Capital City of Tehran at 1921 and was appointed as the Commander in Chief of the Army (Sardar Sepah) by the Prime Minister.

The British favored him as an able military man who can revive Iran for protection of their colony India. Very soon Reza Khan will become Prime Minister.

The Prime Minister Reza Khan Pahlavi, wanted to declare Iran as Republic and become President. But Ayatollahs whom according to the “Mashrooteh” Constitution had what they wanted, disagree and asked him to be the Shah. There was only few in Majles who opposed the Idea and reasoned why a man with his talent and as Prime Minister to become the Shah with no Executive Power?

Finally, Majles agree to make him Reza Shah in 1926.

The Greatest achievement of Reza shah was to keep integrity of the Iranian territory which outshone his other services, which earned him the status of Great and he was named Reza Shah Kabir after his death.

Reza Shah after few years became a ruler with iron fist and start running the country like a military camp as his son, Mohammad Reza Shah, later described him.

He starts choosing the Majles members himself and imprison and even kill those who disagree with him.

When Hitler rose into power he sided with Germans and the fatal mistake of his life was to ignore the Advice of Ata-Turk of Turkey given to him by an official Telegram to send thousands German home and side with Allied Forces. The advice Reza Shah rejected and declared Iran as Neutral. When Allied Forces occupied Iran, British saved his life from Russian occupier and send him to exile in Morris Island of South Africa.

The British were so angry from him that they decided to make a Person from Ghajar Dynasty as the Shah. But respected former Prime Minister of Reza Shah, Mohammad Ali Foroughi convinced the British to appoint Crown Prince Mohamad Reza the shah of Iran according to the Constitution.

The Crown Prince when returned from Switzerland.

He was 17. He spends two years in Iranian Military Academy (Madreseh Nezam) and graduated at age 19. He became His Majesty the Shah of Iran at age of 22.

Both Reza Shah and Mohamad Reza Shah owe their Monarchy to Foroughi, a scholar how was respected by everybody, even Ata-Turk of Turkey and in two occasions removed from his post by both Pahlavi Kings.

The young Mohamad Reza Shah was a democratic king and Majles was doing its duties.

Because of this democracy, the Iranian oil was nationalized, when Dr. Mosaddegh, a democratic Prime Minister, elected by Majles nationalized Iranian Oil in two years fight with British in in the International Courts and United Nation.

But the glory of this democracy was shattered when the Shah with the power given to him by Mashrooteh Constitution send a letter to Mosaddegh, fired him and left the country. Few days later in a Coup d'etat, three-star General Zahedi became Prime Minister and the Shah returned.

Many believe 1953 Coup d'etat, court martial of Mosaddegh, his life time house arrest and dying in the pain of cancer without medical attention and painkiller, could have been the first stage for 1979 Revolution.

Mohamad Reza shah in his stay in Italy was using a checkbook of a friend for his expenses, twenty years later was named the richest man on earth with savings at Swiss Banks around sixty Billion Dollars.

From 1953 up to 1979 Mohamad Reza shah, ShahanShah "King of Kings" Arya Mehr "the Sun of Aryan" became a typical shah like his father at the end of his kingdom abusing the articles of Constitution and ignoring power of Majles, closing down all parties and free press only allying with Ayatollahs to show to Americans that he is fighting with Communists.

But when a Communist Coup d'état occurred in Afghanistan under Shah's most powerful Intelligence Service SAVK, not only he did not predict, but was hopeless to act.

Afghanistan Coup sent a signal to West that Iran with corrupt Pahlavi family is next!

The Shah according to the Constitution had no official duties to act as an executive power. He violated the Constitution many times during his rule.

When the Constitution Revolution started in Iran at 1978 with a famous slogan, "Independence, Freedom, Constitution", Ayatollah Khomeini was not a national figure in the country.

It was Shah who asked Saddam to free Ayatollah Khomeini to go to France and he agreed and, in a way, asked President Giscard d'Estaing to take Ayatollah in France, perhaps they could control him there.

After twenty-five years bad treatment of National Front (Jebheh Meli) and imprisonment of its leaders, during 79 crises, the Shah turned to their leader for help.

National Front split three ways one group start cooperating with Ayatollah Khomeini as they had no organization in Iran as Shah destroyed all democratic institutions and parties except religious ones. Second group did nothing and third group start working with Shah. Dr. Seddighi was first one with a condition that Shah should remain in Iran and return all the money he and his family taken from Iran. Shah did not agree with this. Second and final one was Shapoor Bakhtiyar. Unfortunately, Shah stapp Bakhtiyar in the back and before leaving Iran, he gave all his monarchy authority to his old friend Fardoost and instructed all the army commanders to obey Fardoost, not Bakhtiyar.

Bakhtiyar Government collapsed after 37 days when Fardoost surrender the Army and hand over all the Intelligent Services of the country to Ayatollahs.

Khomeini arranged a referendum after 50 days of victory asking Islamic Republic with all those promises he gave, “Yes or No”?

Result was 98.2% yes!

One month later there was an election for writing the new Constitution.

Here Khomeini showed his true face and a constitution was passed, which was contrary to what he has promised to the people. When he was asked by a reporter why such a twist in your promise, he replied: “Khod-a Kardam”. Meaning I played a trick. Khod-a is a religious act in Shia meaning for a personal protection and advancement of the ideology one can lie, cheat and play trick.

If both constitutions of 1906 and 1979 are studied one can easily modify the 1979 Constitution, by removing religious aspects of all articles and most important one removing article 110, which gives all the Executive, Legislation and Judiciary power to the Ayatollah Leader.

But 1906 Constitution which was a great achievement for hundred years ago cannot be modified.

That is why people of Iran in 2019 after 14 people Manifestation asking to modify the present Constitution only for an election without interference of the Ayatollahs so that at the eighth and final phase of this Constitution Movement a new and Parliamentary Government Constitution to be refined and written.

The devastation that Islamic Republic Constitution has brought to Iran are endless and not limited to the followings:

More than one million losses of life of the best Iranian at war.

Forced Immigration and amnesty of many million

Iranian and brain Drains of the young.

More than a trillion Dollars stolen capital from Iran and depositing in personal accounts of foreign banks.

Several Trion Dollars' worth of all entities such as industry to agriculture and cultural to Ayatollahs families and coronis using excuses of privatization.

Creating a hopeless and indifferent people governing by less than one present who have been mentored in the belief that Ayatollah Leader is representative of Absent 12th Imam on earth waiting for his appearance with Jesus Christ.

However, all the above and many other misdoings of the Ayatollahs with their Constitution sometime could be forgotten, but the devastation to the environment cannot be recovered for many generations to come.

But there is one and only one benefits:

After one thousand years that four clergies claimed they are in contact with the son of 11th Imam and started collecting donation for the 12th Imam up to 1979, majority of Iranian regarded the clergies as Holy and had respect for them. But plundering Iran by this people with no shame and show off has made Iran the most anti clergy country in the World, even by their own admission that seventy percent of Iranian youth do not believe in anything! However, the people should be thankful to Ayatollah Khomeini who showed the true face of Islamic State after 1400 years of deception! Change of Constitution is the only way to save morality of Iranian people and the safest way for clergies and Ayatollahs to leave the Government and go back to mosques where they belong.

People of Iran will finally have their Parliamentary Secular Government Constitution with or without agreement of Ayatollahs, with or without help of US Administration and with or without stone throwing of anti-constitution Iranians outside Iran (Followers of Reza Pahlavi and MKO).

Inside Iran, Change of Constitution must happen because rules and regulations of this Regime are not according the teachings of the Quran.

To prove that to the masses of people, whom they get their orders from Ayatollahs, reading Quran in Persian and chronical is recommended. Such a version of Quran has been published which is called “Quran Rastin” meaning True Quran.

Here you can read about it at Appendix 2.

In the Quran, there are four crimes, which have punishment: 1- Killing 2- Stealing 3- Arm rebellion against Government 4- Adultery with four witnesses.

There is no punishment for writing or talking about wrong doing of the Government and Leader or demonstration against Leader and Government.

There is no punishment for women not having “Hejab” or headdress.

There is no punishment for drinking wine or spirit.

There is no punishment for being nonbeliever. The Quran encourages Muslim to guide the nonbelievers and even if they do not believe in God, recommends to leave them alone, as God will punish them after death.

With these simple reasons the Islamic Republic of Iran Constitution should be changed.

There is a Persian expression, which says, “If you wait, from sour grape you can make sweet Halwa” or “Good things comes to those who wait” or “Patience will bring you Pence”.
